I have not seen Terry for a long time, but I always thought of her fondly. I met her when she lived down the street from me and I played with her daughter Pamela. I was twelve years old so she must have been about 21. What I always thought was cool is that she was the youngest mother in the neighborhood & pretty. I was on the verge of becoming a teenager and she always talked to me as a friend and an adult. I'll remember her for that and for her laugh whenever we would meet. When she went to the hospital to have Donna I helped to babysit Pam. Where did the years go? Rest In Peace Terry! Susan Tanabe Shingle
