As a grandmother...She loved all three of her grand kids. She became a grandmother late but took pride to become their first baby sitter when their mothers went back to work after maternity leave from their jobs. At 70's she bathed, feed, changed diapers ...she did these when they were not so cute to take care. She used to catch the bus early in the morning and back home to do this for her love of them. All three of them has now graduated college but always happy to see or hear from them. They are her pride and joy.
