“ You are my eldest son, deeply loved by me and by so many others. You saved a lot of lives, and though your life on earth was short, you lived larger than life, yet gently and humbly. I treasure the pre-dawn visits to Lanikai beach with you to wait for the sun to rise and us taking photos of the sun as it streaked across the rippling water and the deep red coral, oranges, pinks and purple hues of the early morning clouds and sky. Love lives on.

“ Aaron was a great nurse with a great heart. He LOVED to teach what he knew (sometimes too much haha) and really did have a passion for helping people. He always talked about his wife and how lucky he was to find her so early in life (as I was perpetually single for some time lol). He will be missed and remembered.

“ Aaron is my eldest son and I am so proud of the man he became. He lived larger than life, yet with a humble and gentle soul. It is why he had so many true and good friends. He did so much for others that I never even knew about until recently. He loved working E.R. medicine in which he was so skilled. He was a loving son with a huge heart.

When I came to his new adopted State of Hawaii to visit, he took me snorkeling for the first time in my life. One of my best memories was going to Lanikai beach before sunrise where we quietly watched the sun and clouds paint the sea scape with shades of scarlet, orange, reds, pinks and purples, streaking sun paths across the waves. He so loved to photograph the beauty of Oahu and in particular, Lanikai sunrise.
